¹ September 14, 1982. Notebook 72, Robert Duncan Collection, The Poetry Collection, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York. Robert Duncan taught at New College, San Francisco from 1980 to 1986. The last class he taught there was the H.D.

Seminar. For Duncan's teaching of H.D. prior to New College, see notes made by Eric Mottram of Duncan's lecture on H.D., delivered in October 1972 at Kent State University as part of his lecture series "Pound, Eliot and H.D.: The Cult of the Gods in American Poetry," reproduced in A. Evans and S. Zamir, eds, "'Between Revelation and Persuasion,' A Compilation" in Jacket, no. 34 (October 2007). <http://www.jacketmagazine.com/34>

³ † Gertrude R. Levy, The Sword from the Rock: An Investigation into the Origins of the Epic Literature and the Development of the Hero (London: Faber and Faber, 1953).

⁴ Levy, The Violet Crown: An Athenian Biography (London: Faber and Faber, 1954).

⁵ Levy, The Phoenix' Nest: A Study in Religious Transformations (London: Rider & Co., 1961).

⁶ † Sigfried Giedion, The Eternal Present: The Beginnings of Art; A Contribution on Constancy and Change vol. 1 (New York: Bollingen Foundation [Pantheon Books], 1962). Both volumes 1 and 2 are from the A. W. Mellon Lectures, delivered at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, DC, 1957.

¹⁰ † Duncan owned: The Book of the Dead: The Hieroglyphic Transcript of the Papyrus of Ani; The Translation into English and an Introduction by E. A. Wallis Budge (New Hyde Park, NY: University Books, [1960]). Copy contains Collins/Duncan bookplate no. 220, dated "1958." The edition owned by H.D., held in the Bryher Library, NY, is: Budge, trans., Book of the Dead: An English Translation (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co., Ltd.; New York: E.P. Dutton, 1938). Copy contains H.D.'s rose bookplate. Also: The Dweller on the Nile, 5th ed. (London: The Religious Tract Society, 1899). Copy contains H.D.'s rose bookplate. Works by Budge that H.D. owned, held at the Beinecke Rare Books and Manuscript Collection: Egyptian Ideas of the Future Life (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co., Ltd., 1908); Easy lessons in Egyptian Hieroglyphics, with Sign List (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co., Ltd., 1902); Egyptian Literature (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co., Ltd., 1912); Egyptian Heaven and Hell (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co., Ltd., 1905); Osiris and the Egyptian Resurrection (London: Medici Society, 1911); Cleopatra's Needles and Other Egyptian Obelisks; a Series of Descriptions of all the Important Inscribed Obelisks, with Hieroglyphic Texts, Translations, etc. (London: The Religious Tract Society, 1926); Hieroglyphic Vocabulary to the Theban Recension of the Book of the Dead, with an Index to all the English Equivalents of the Egyptian words (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co. Ltd., 1911).

¹³ Alongside editions of the Bible owned by H.D., Genesis is included in selections of the Old Testament found in: Ballou, Robert O., ed., The Bible of the World (London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co. Ltd., 1940). Held in the Bryher Library, NY, the copy contains H.D.'s rose bookplate. Editions of the Bible and studies of Genesis owned by Duncan as part of his personal library include the following: Ludwig Philippson, Die heilige Schrift des Israeliten (Stuttgart: Druck und Verlag von Eduard Hallberger, 1858), copy contains Duncan-Collins bookplate no. 5145, dated "12/1/1970," volume is the bilingual Hebrew-German edition of the Bible renowned for its rich illustrations (by Gustave Doré) and thought to be the book from which Freud was educated by his father; The Anchor Bible (Garden City, NY: Doubleday, 1964); The New English Bible (Oxford: Oxford University Press; Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1970), copy contains "Robert Duncan and Jess" bookplate, dated "10-19-1967"; The Holy Bible: Containing the Old and New Testaments; Translated out of the Original Tongues and With the Former Translations Diligently Compared and Revised., by his Majesty's Special Command; Appointed to be Read in Churches; Authorized King James (New York: Oxford University Press, 19--?), copy contains Collins/Duncan bookplate no. 759, inscription to "My Son Burgess" by "Mother" and stamped "Burgess F. Collins." Books Duncan owned that take the book of Genesis as their focus include: Rudolph Steiner, Genesis: Secrets of the Bible Story of Creation; Ten lectures given in Munich, 17-26 August 1910 (London: Anthroposophical Pub. Co., 1959); Robert Graves and Raphael Patai, Hebrew Myths: the Book of Genesis (New York: Greenwich House [Crown Publishers], c1964); C. J. Barker, ed., Mysterium Magnum: Or An Exposition of the First Book of Moses Called Genesis, trans. John Sparrow (London: J. M. Watkins, 1965); contains Collins/Duncan bookplates nos. 3281-3282, dated "12/65," for Patai, see note 15; Edmund R. Leach, Genesis as Myth, and Other Essays (London: Cape, 1969); Hermann Gunkel, The Legends of Genesis: the Biblical Saga and History (New York: Schocken Books, 1970), for Albright see note 14, copy contains a "Robert Duncan and Jess" bookplate no. 3778, dated "5-15-1967" and a bookplate of Samuel Weiser; Carlo Suares, The Cipher of Genesis: the Original Code of the Qabala as Applied to the Scriptures (Berkeley: Shambala Publications, 1970), copy contains an enclosure, for details see Poetry Special Collection catalogue, SUNY Buffalo.

¹⁴ William F. Albright, Archaeology and the Religion of Israel: The Ayer Lectures of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, 1941 (Baltimore: Johns Hopkins, 1942).

¹⁶ † Harry Sperling, Maurice Simon, and Dr Paul P. Levertoff, trans., The Zohar. 5 vols. (London: Soncino Press, 1931- 4). The set of five volumes, a student edition of which was produced in 1978, is still widely available. Often referred to as The Soncino Zohar, for several decades it constituted the largest portion of the Zohar in English. The Dr Levertoff among its translators, controversial due to his conversion to Christianity and promotion of a dialogue between Judaism and Christianity, was the father of Duncan's close friend, the poet Denise Levertov (who changed the spelling of her own surname). Duncan introduced Levertov to H.D. and, in his correspondence with her, frequently discusses his work on H.D., together with the two younger poets' reading of H.D. and their differing opinions of her relationship with Bryher. See Gelpi and Bertholf, eds, The Letters of Robert Duncan and Denise Levertov (Palo Alto, CA: Stanford University Press, 2003).

¹⁷ Louis Ginzberg, Legends of the Jews Vols I-VII (Philadelphia: Jewish Publication Society, 1901-1938).

²⁰ † Found in Hesiod, The Homeric Hymns and Homerica with an English Translation by Hugh G. Evelyn-White. H. G. Loeb Classical Library Volume 57 (Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 1914).

²² † Bracket is Duncan's own. Duncan's personal library, held at SUNY, Buffalo contains the following edition: The Complete Works of Percy Bysshe Shelley, Newly Edited by Roger Ingpen and Walter E. Peck in Ten Volumes (New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1927-30). Shelley's 1830 translation rendered the Hymns, particularly the "Hymn to Hermes," well known to English language readers. For praise of Shelley's "Hymn to Mercury," see Duncan's essay "A Critical Difference of View," reproduced as an Appendix in Gelpi and Bertholf, eds, The Letters of Robert Duncan and Denise Levertov (Palo Alto, CA: Stanford University Press, 2003), 730. For an additional translation, by Andrew Lang (note 46), see The Homeric Hymns: A New Prose Translation; and Essays, Literary and Mythological (London: Allen, 1899).

²³ Dudley Fitts, trans., One Hundred Poems from the Palatine Anthology: in English Paraphrase, Part of the Greek Anthology. English Series (New York: William R. Scott, 1938). See also Fitts, trans., More Poems from the Palatine Anthology: in English Paraphrase, Part of the Greek Anthology; English Series (Norfolk, Conn: New Directions, 1941). For Duncan in the "H.D. Book," it is Fitts (who had reviewed The Flowering of the Rod) and Randall Jarrell who typify a direct criticism and subsequent neglect of H.D.: "The critics of the day – Dudley Fitts and Randall Jarrell – found her concept of history silly, if not dangerous, an offense to any common sense." (Book II, Chapter 5, n.p.). In Duncan's discussion of the close of Trilogy, the two come to stand for the critic in general: "We may see then behind or over or included in the scene between the Wise Man Kaspar and the Fallen Woman Mary another scene. Let us not imagine now a critic – the distaste of the fundamentally unsympathetic and then antagonistic Fitts or Jarrell must not stand for the caution, the discretion, that Kaspar with his tradition and profound gender carries. It must be the poet Williams or the poet Pound or the poet Baudelaire then that confronts the poetess. .

.” (Book II, Chapter 8, I, n.p.).

²⁵ H. J. Rose, Handbook of Greek Mythology: Including its Extension to Rome (London: Methuen, 1928). For a recent handbook based on this text, see Robin Hard, Routledge Handbook of Greek Mythology - Based on H.J. Rose's Handbook of Greek Mythology. Vol. 1. (London and New York: Routledge, 2004, 2008). Rose translated work by Kerényi, see note 41.

²⁷ The Quest. A Quarterly review ed. G. R. S. Mead (London: The Quest Society, 1909-1931). Duncan owned several texts by Mead. He discusses the Quest Society, and Pound's, Yeats' and others involvement with it, in the “HD Book,” Book I, Chapter 5.

²⁸ Duncan owned: William K. C. Guthrie, Orpheus and Greek Religion. A Study of the Orphic Movement (London: Methuen, 1952). Also: In the Beginning: Some Greek Views on the Origins of Life and the Early State of Man (Ithaca: Cornell University Press, 1957).

³³ Harrison, Epilogomena to the Study of Greek Religion: A Brief Summary of the Origins of Greek Religions (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1921).

³⁴ † Duncan owned: Arthur B. Cook, Zeus: A Study in Ancient Religion. 3 vols. (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1914-1940).

New College on H.D., entitled "Myrrh: A Study of Persona in H.D.'s Trilogy." It was published in Line, 12: Fall 1988.

³⁶ Richard B. Onians, The Origins of European thought: About the Body, the Mind, the Soul, the World, Time and Fate (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1951). Well known in its various draft forms, this text was cited throughout the 1930s and 1940s prior to its publication after the end of World War II.

³⁷ † E. R. Dodds, The Greeks and the Irrational: Sather Classical Lectures Vol. 25 (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1951).

³⁹ Carl Kerényi, The Gods of the Greeks, trans. N. Cameron (New York: Thames & Hudson, 1951). Influenced by Walter Otto (see note 46) and a close friend of Jung, Kerényi was credited by Carl Jung with assuring a long-lasting dialogue between psychology and Greek mythology. See Kerényi and Jung, Essays on the Science of Mythology: the Myths of the Divine Child and the Divine Maiden (New York: Harper, 1949), owned by Duncan, and Kerényi and Jung, The Trickster: a Study in American Indian Mythology (London: Routledge, 1956). Duncan also possessed several works by Kerényi not included in the bibliography. In addition, he owned papers from the Eranos Yearbooks in which Kerényi's work appeared originally (New York: The Bollingen Foundation [Pantheon Books], 1954-1960).

⁴⁰ Kerényi, The Heroes of the Greeks, trans. H. J. Rose (New York: Thames & Hudson, 1959). For the translator of this edition, Rose, see note 25.

⁴⁵ Walter F. Otto, The Homeric Gods: the Spiritual Significance of Greek Religion (New York: Pantheon Books, 1954).

⁴⁶ Duncan owned Andrew Lang, ed., Theocritus, Bion and Moschus Rendered into English Prose With an Introductory Essay (London and New York: MacMillan and Co., 1928). A founding proponent of "psychical research," Lang corresponded with Yeats on the subject. Works by Lang that H.D. owned, held in the Bryher library (NH), are his "Fairy Books" †: Andrew Lang, ed., The Blue Fairy Book (London: Longmans, Green, 1937), copy contains H.D.'s rose bookplate; The Crimson Fairy Book (London: Longmans, Green, 1937), copy is inscribed "H.D. Aldington"; The Grey Fairy Book (London: Longmans, 1937), copy is inscribed "H. Aldington"; The Pink Fairy Book (London: Longmans, 1936), copy is inscribed "H. Aldington"; The Red Fairy Book (London: Longmans, Green, 1937), copy contains H.D.'s rose bookplate and is inscribed "H. Aldington"; The Violet Fairy Book

(London: Longmans, 1937), copy is inscribed "H. Aldington"; The Yellow Fairy Book (London: Longmans, Green, 1937), copy is inscribed "H. Aldington." In the "H.D. Book," Duncan refers to H. J. Ford's illustration of the fairy books (Book II, chapter 8, section V) and refers to H.D.'s reading of the fairy books in relation to his own reading of Trilogy (Book II, chapter 2, section II).

AMY EVANS is completing a doctoral thesis at King's College London on "Robert Duncan, Women Poets and the Divine Feminine." She co-edited The Unruly Garden: Robert Duncan and Eric Mottram, Essays & Letters (Peter Lang: 2007) with Shamooin Zamir and her artwork "Like a Red Rose" appeared in "H.D. and the Image," Jacket 38 (Late 2009).
